DETROIT (WXYZ) — The iconic Detroit Music Hall has announced a new multimillion dollar expansion project.

The $122 million project, designed by architects Tod Williams Billie Tsien Architects (TWBTA), will serve as a centrally located, accessible hub for “music programming, production, education and connectivity,” Music Hall officials revealed.

The project is expected to be completed in the fall of 2026.

“The expansion will welcome the world to Detroit. Through this new development, we honor our musical legends and create opportunity for the music legends of tomorrow. This portal to the people not only engages our community, but will encourage tourists from all over the world to visit and celebrate their musical heroes,” Vince Paul, President and Artistic Director of Detroit Music Hall said.
